AROUND CAMPUS

Graduate Student Thesis Writing Boot Camps: Every Thursday and Friday
Want to jump into your thesis and dissertation writing? Planning to finish it this semester? Sign up for a Writing Boot Camp session. Writing Boot Camp offers a quiet sunny space in the TFDL with plenty of plugs. It is BYOC (bring your own computer). These sessions are only open to students writing an honours, masters, or doctoral thesis. In these three hour sessions, you will set a goal and then write for three hours. No procrastination allowed. Contact 403.220.5881, option 2 or wconline@ucalgary.ca for more details.

Call for Volunteers for Planning the 2015 ACUNS Student Conference
The University of Calgary, Arctic Institute of North America and the Association of Canadian Universities for Northern Studies are collaborating to host the 2015 ACUNS Student Conference, DUE NORTH: Next Generation Arctic Research & Leadership. The conference will take place November 5-8, 2015 at the University of Calgary. The conference is a student led initiative and we are looking for students with northern interests in all disciplines to help with conference planning. Through the organizing experience students also have an opportunity to develop professional experience, forge links with government and community stakeholders, and make national and international connections. If you are interested in joining the planning committee please contact us at acuns15@ucalgary.ca
